DESCRIPTION

In this remarkable and acclaimed documentary, we meet Buck Brannaman, the original "horse whisperer." What begins as a simple story about the art of horse training quickly moves into the realm of the magical as the camera follows Brannaman going about his business. Depicting a method of "natural horsemanship" that teaches horses the way of the world without breaking their spirit, this enthralling story is especially affecting as we learn about the horrific physical and emotional abuse that Brannaman suffered as a child. Against this background, the viewer is invited to witness a relationship between man and animal that is both astonishing and redemptive.

HOST/MODERATOR

Jackie Mann, our host and moderator, has been inspired by film and it's relevance to psychotherapy throughout her career as a psychoanalyst and clinician. Her love for film is matched only by her grace and skill as our discussion leader.
